William Declares That the Army Bill Must Pass

TO INSURE EUROPE'S PEACE

If Necessary He Will Dissolve the Coming Hetchetag to liscure the Passage of the But.

BRELLY, May 9 .- After the review of the troops on the Tempelhofer field today, Emperor William commanded the highest officers of the guards to gather round him and addressed to them the

"Since we last met the situation created by the army bill has shown peculiar changes. I could not look forward to the rejection of the bill. On the contrary, trusting to the patriotism of the reichstag. I hoped for the unconditional acceptance of it. The result has caused me deep disappointment and sorrow. I regret that the patriotic men who were in the minority did not succeed in defeating those who were indifferent to the welfare of their country. During the last few days passionate words, which might better have remained unsaid among gentiemen, have been spoken.

I was obliged to dissolve the reichstag in the hope that the new reichstag would pass the bill. I am determined, in case this hope also be disappointed, to stake all in my power to obtain the enactment of the measure, for I am too thoroughly convinced of its necessity as a guarantee of the peace of Europe to allow it to be finally defeated.

"We are hearing much about the ex-citement of the masses just now. I do not think that the German people will allow themselves to be excited by irre-sponsible meddlers. On the contrary, I know that I am in sympathy with the people and the army. I thank you, gentlemen, for your loyal interest. My desire was to express to you my views concerning the bill as I did when the bill was introduced."

The emperor spoke very slowly, pausing slightly after each sentence, emphasized all significant words as if to direct attention to the seriousness of the situation and the firmness of his resolve to win. The officers grouped around him and listened in silence

MR. E. A. ENGLISH, 433 BROADWAY.

Mr. English says: "My wife has been trying to persuade me to go to Drs. Copeland and Graham ever since my increasing weakness compelled me to quit work. Physicians had pronounced my trouble consumption and incurable. I coughed and raised the worst kind of corruption constantly, and sweat protusely every night. Sleep was impossible. I had pains in both lungs and breathing was difficult, and my lungs felt filled up. I was losing flesh rapidly; my appetite was gone, my food did me little good, had the headache all the time, a constant

I had the headache all the time, a constant bad taste in my mouth and so weak in the morning that I could scarcely get up. When I went to Drs. Copeland and Graham I was completely exhausted in walking from the car to the door, only a few steps.

"After a thorough examination the doctore told me they could cure me, and I have, as a result of their treatment, been at work for several weeks and have not felt as well in twenty-five years. I have been free from headaches and my glomach is so improved that for the first time in years I am free from the bad taste in my mouth on rising in the that for the first time in years I am free from the bad taste in my mouth on rising in the morning. I feel that I cannot say too much in praise of the pleasant and effectual treat-ment I received at the hands of Drs. Cope-land and Gralam, as I realize that they have saved my life.

WORDS OF EMINENT MEN.

What Sir Morell Machenzie and Prof. David Inglie Say About Catarrh.

On the occasion of his last visit to America the late Sir Morell Mackenzie was asked his opinion of the climate of America and its action on disease of the throat and lungs:

action on disease of the threat and lungs:
He replied:
"In your American climate catarrh is unquestionably the cause of more deaths than any other disease. At first, it is as a rule, a little thing, mere cold in the head. But in a climate like this one, cold is not entirely cured before another follows. A succession of colds constitutes chronic catarrh. A strong and healthy constitution will suffer only inconvenience from catarrh, but all others run a great risk of what may follow. The health is broken, the constitution weakened, and, although the catarrh itself may not be the actual cause of death, still indirectly, by so weakening the system that it is unable to resist the attack of other diseases, it is."

that 90 per cent of the people in America are afflicted with masal catarria.

David Inglis, M. D., professor of mental and nervous diseases, Detroit College of Medicine, says: "It has seemed to me that the profession is only beginning to wake up to the widespread realation of intranasal disorders to functional disturbances of the nervous system. I have had reason to attribute to masal trouble not only, asthma, coughs, various gastric disturbances, but melancholia, cholera and epileppy."
